Matt Jeneroux

Member of Parliament
Edmonton Riverbend

November 6, 2025

For those who have reached out, I am deeply grateful for your friendship and concern. However, I ask that you please not attempt to contact my family during this time.

I ran in the last election hopeful that Canadians would put their faith in a team led by Pierre Poilievre's Conservatives, offering a chance to change Canada's perception in our own country and around the world. I wanted desperately to play a role in that vision.

Although the outcome was not what I anticipated, I have great admiration for the many remarkable individuals who were elected to the House of Commons — on both sides of the aisle — who continue to dedicate themselves to the betterment of our nation. Their work gives me faith that the momentum toward a stronger and more unified Canada endures.

With all of this in mind, earlier today I spoke with our Opposition Whip — a colleague and friend for whom I have the utmost respect — to inform him of my decision to resign as a Member of Parliament. It was not an easy decision, but it is, I believe, the right one.

I hope to have the opportunity to address the House one final time in the future. For now, my focus must turn entirely to my family and to the responsibilities that come with that.
